Tuesday morning started off superb for SCIP members when Mark Whalen and fellow corporate individuals came to speak about their journeys in the hospitality industry . Combined, the mentors had over 100 years of work experience; the speakers spoke of the formidable obstacles they faced, what their jobs consist of, and how they managed having responsibilities in family and work. They facilitated workshops that comprised of learning to sell yourself and how to maintain relationships with business partners. A panel discussion was held where SCIP members got valuable insight about starting a business, education, time prioritization, and work ethic.

The 2016 SCIP Young Leaders had the pleasure of collaborating with a renowned litigator, Daniel Guadalupe, who hosted a mock trial for the 2016 SCIP Class. Each SCIP Young Leader was assigned a role - in respect to the legal court system - and they took upon a case. With a prosecution and defendant team, the lawyers of each faction stated their cases and cross-examined each other's witnesses. With tensions rising, debates got heated up very rapidly, and soon the SCIP team was introduced into the pressures of the the justice system. Mr. Guadalupe explained how litigation is an imperative background to have, especially for those venturing into the corporate world.

Five SCIP Young Leaders attended the presentation of Toshiba Technology on Thursday. They were able to interact with Toshiba employees and other corporate partners. They captured the moment, often taking pictures with guests and event coordinators. The Young Leaders were privileged to witness the exposition of state-of-the-art technology. The exchange of business cards was quite frequent. Overall the team received an exposure to what networking consists of and why it is crucial to any businessman/businesswoman.

Young Leaders share their highlights of the week

"On Monday, all the young leaders split up into groups to finish projects that were due at the end of the day. Working together and cooperating with different people were definitely highlights for me."

- Vicki Wong

"The panel that Mark Whalen brought to SCIP really helped me understand how the hospitality industry really works. Mr. Whalen also helped me strengthen my skills on my elevator pitch and how to introduce myself to a professional in a proper way."

- Emely Jorge

"In my second week, I was able to experience the atmosphere of being a lawyer thanks to Daniel Guadalupe. SCIP also offered a great opportunity to network with corporate individuals at Toshiba."

- Mildred Gil

"Going to Toshiba was very eye-opening. We were able to experience what real networking was like. I enjoyed hearing different background stories from prominent individuals in the Toshiba company."

- Jiawen Mei
